"... We may as well accept the fact that the world from now on will tend to look more in the direction of the eventual successor and less to the outgoing leadership in the White House."

With this as his keynote, former President Harry S. Truman urges in a provocative article that this is a time for the Administration to assert more firmly than ever its leadership.

The West must not become divided, he says. He speaks strongly on Cuba and the Summit. His article will be read with interest by thoughtful people everywhere.

March 21, 1960.
